WELCOME TO AUGUST AT IKEA

With autumn round the corner, it's time to get the home in shape for some good and cozy indoor times. This month there's a big focus on the kitchen, with a new very affordable kitchen launched along with matching products. For the rest of the home there's a range of textiles to discover, from cushion covers with traditional Swedish patterns to sophisticated bedding and two new rugs that are tough enough for the outdoors.

The living room sees the addition of a unique rocking chair in rattan and some modern and fun sofa tables. To help set the right mood, we're launching a range of home decoration pieces, for example a glass dome and box, beautiful figurines and candleholders - all to prepare the home before the leaves start falling.

GRÖNADAL ROCKING-CHAIR

Traditional Vietnamese handcraft and modern Scandinavian style come together in GRÖNADAL rocking-chair. The chair was produced in a rattan factory in Nha Trang, where IKEA makes many different products as part of helping to create jobs and preserve valuable traditions by working with rattan. The chair is made with an unusual mix of materials in a strong iconic shape, as the designer Lisa Hilland explains:

“I designed GRÖNADAL with the idea of making a rocking-chair that unites unexpected meetings between materials and expressions. Rattan and ash are lively natural materials that age with grace, creating an interesting contrast to the powder-coated steel. The back and seat are handwoven using traditional techniques, while the airy shape connects to modern Scandinavian design.”

Using a cane weaving technique where rattan is woven directly onto the steel frame, the skilled craftsmen have created a chair that's both lightweight and easy to move around, and start rocking in.

Combining traditional Vietnamese craftsmanship with modern Scandinavian style, GRÖNADAL rocking-chair is made in woven rattan, light and easy to get rocking in!

VALLENTUNA SERIES

Times are changing and these days the living room often needs to work as more than just that. With smaller living spaces, it may need to provide a bed (or more), and extra storage is always attractive. To meet all these needs, we have created our most flexible seating solution so far - VALLENTUNA series.

Based on units with the same look, it's possible to combine sections for seating, sleeping and storage, while also mixing and matching different covers to create a very unique, personal combination. It's easy to change and adapt sections to create solutions in different sizes and shapes that suit every family and living space. Even unconventional shapes can be created, with sleep for one to several people, next to each other or separated with space in between. Bedding can be kept in a seat section with storage for all sorts of things, while also looking nice on the inside. On the following pages are some ready sofa combinations from small to big that can be bought easily in the store.

All modular sections are available in a range of soft covers in mature colors, all removable and washable. Even the armrests and backrests can be given a different color - the possibilities of VALLENTUNA series are indeed endless!

KALVIA ADD-ON FRONT

With open kitchens being more and more popular, it's a chance to add some character and style to the home using kitchen fronts that work as art. That was the idea when IKEA collaborated with fashion designer and artist Martin Bergström. The result was KALVIA add-on fronts that cover six different motifs from one of his paintings printed directly onto our high-quality kitchen doors in six different sizes. These bold, graphic designs are sure to add a splash of fashion to the kitchen.

PULLED SALMON SANDWICH

The cold range in the IKEA Restaurant is now joined by an exciting dish - the pulled salmon sandwich. This dish has come about from some smart thinking around taking care of all of the prime salmon meat, not just the fillets, which means using more of the fish. The salmon has then been hot smoked, and with spices and a BBQ sauce added the taste is almost like pulled pork - but salmon.

Influenced by street food trends, the pulled salmon comes in a bun with pickled red cabbage and sweet and sour pickles, as well as a green leaf salad. The result is a spicy dish that's also sustainable, since all salmon at IKEA is ASC-certified (Aquaculture Stewardship Council).

RÖDARV CUSHION KUDDVIVA & BRUNÖRT CUSHION COVERS

This month, two new cushion covers and a new cushion with coordinated patterns bring a traditional look to the sofa. The designer Eva Lundgren who created RÖDARV cushion and KUDDVIVA cushion cover made old Swedish patterns come alive in her designs:

"Sketching the RÖDARV, I was inspired by traditional Swedish wool embroidery. I thought about how women in the old days used their plant-dyed yarn to weave and create wonderful textiles by candlelight. My imagination ran free when I thought about all the flowers picked in wild meadows. A treasure, rich in design and color, to stand out in the otherwise simple homes. And it's just as beautiful in our modern homes today."

RÖDARV cushion is embroidered which adds texture and lustre to the fabric. And just like in times gone by, RÖDARV cushion and KUDDVIVA cushion covers are made in the shapes of coach cushions traditionally used for horse and carriage.

ROSKILDE RUG

When designer Synnöve Mork got to work on the blue and green color block pattern of ROSKILDE rug she was inspired by modern art, architecture and furniture from the 1950s and '60s. The design process itself was an interesting one:

"To create ROSKILDE rug, I started out by painting with colors and patterns from that era. Then I cut everything into smaller pieces, placed them in different directions and put them back together again. The final result became a kind of platform for furniture in the modern home – a rug for all sorts of rooms."

ROSKILDE rug comes in a new format (8'2"×6'7") and being flatwoven it works equally well by a sofa as it does under a dining table, it even works outdoors. Adding style to a patio or deck, there's nothing stopping this rug from looking great for many seasons to come.
